

Why would a family leave their home? What would push them out? And then, where would they go? What would be the attraction of going someplace totally new and foreign? You can find the answers in this compelling story of the Weber family who left Neunkirchen am Potzberg in Bavaria, Germany in the early 19th century with one branch emigrating to Brazil while the other branch started their new life in the United States.

Henry & Caroline Stoneburner Weaver's 50th Anniversary Celebration at the Vinson & Anne Weaver Richardson homestead (September 1907)

DETAILS: More than 330 well-documented pages; eighteen figures; plus, seven fascinating appendices including a genealogical chart of Jakob Weber (1753-1827) and an extensive, detailed appendix of Jakob and Rosina Wollenschläger's nearly 1,000 descendants giving birth, marriage, death and burial dates along with geographical information, whenever possible. Email me at jvrjvr@att.net while it is $59.95 plus tax and shipping (about $4.99 to CONUS). So, order now!

Die Weber Familie:
The Weber, Wollenschläger,
Habermann, and Kempf Families
in Early 19th Century Palatine Germany, Brazil, and the United States of America

Neunkirchen am Potzberg

John V. Richardson Jr., PhD
Los Angeles: ITA Press

AVAILABLE NOW: December 2019